The ratification meeting was the coldest of its kind that has been held in this territory in the past five years. Those who can remember the meeting which ratified the nomination of Frank Cannon, and the red-hot, enthusiastic, howling, cheering, applauding mass of Republicans who came to greet the "Little Napoleon" and hung with rapture on every one of his flowery, bomture on every one of his flowery, bombastic sentences, raved over every mention of candidates or victory, yelled at bounty, howled at profession and broke loose over any mention of Claveland cannot belo but notice that vast change has come over the Republican party.

Only an echo of the former enthusiam was heard during the evening. Applause was half-hearted and short. Cheers were but seldom evoked. Allu-sions to protection, bounty, the gold bond proposition, the silver policy of the administration and other Repub-loan pet subjects were received with silence. Hard times sentences fell on since. Hard times sentences fell on unsympathetic ears. Allusion to the candidates sometimes evoked applause and sometimes old not according to the manner in which they were made. Wells' speech was curious. His bear-ing lacked magnetism; his speech lacked the quality that awakens enthu-sings in this chief attention was desinsm. His chief attention was de-voted to the history of the parties in Utah and claims for victory. His de-charation for silver was an after-thought and was dismissed with the

It was a grevious disappointment to the leaders of the Oquirrh club when fney saw how slowly the people filed foot the theatre and occupied the seats. They had expected that 7:45 would see the building jammed to the doors. The Flambeau club, led by the Denhalter band, paraded the streets without beinging in sufficient recruits to fill the alleries, and 8:15 still saw the house

Third Mile, Class B.

Half Mile Championship, Class A.

Then came the half mile state cham-plonship, class A, which brought out a big field of fast men. On the start McConahay took the lead, with May second and Hyde close up. Nearing the turn, everyone spurted, but Charlie Smith whizzed by them all, winning after a pretty finish in 1:07 1-5, establishing a const record. May ok second place, with Hyde third In this race, Hazel, McConahay and Collinson were thrown, and the named was injured pretty badly.

Half Mile, Class ii,

For this event, Fowler, of Ogden, Schefski, Thatcher, Weller, Connebear and Hassard were entered. It looked as chough this would be one of the finest contests of the day, but unfor-tunately, just as the men were begin-ning to use to readthen for more than ning to get in position for spuris, Has-sard tried to cut in front of Weiler, and it is said that Thatcher accident-ally touched some one. Be that as it may, Weller and Hassard went down. the latter being badly hurt. The force of the fall stunned him for a few seconds, but he soon came around. Weller was not injured much, but his bruises kept him out of the other races. The finish was between Thatcher, Schefski and Fowler, and the first named, by a magnificent spurt on the stretch, won easily, with Fowler sec-ond and Schefski third. By some process of measuring known to them-solves the officials gave the race to Fowler, their action greatly disapnting the audience. Thatcher's time

On this event a time limit of 48 seconds was placed, although such ac-tion was hardly fair considering the strong wind that was blowing at the onds was placed, although such action was hardly fair considering the strong wind that was blowing at the fime. It brought out all the racers, May, Hyde, Jensen, Smith and others. It was anybody's race up to the scratch, when Smith let himself out and just ran away from the bunch, H. O. Jensen second and Hyde third. Time: 48.

This was two seconds above the limit, but was fast time considering the conditions, and sir-th mave stood. Smith received an ovation when he came back to the stand, and the crowd was not particularly pleased with the notice placed on the board: "No race—will be run over,"

On the run over, which came later in the afternoon, Smith remained out and the same limit of 46 seconds was placed on it. It was won by Hyde, H. O. Jensen second and H. J. Jensen third, The time was 47, still a second above the limit, but the officials, in their wisdom, decided to left it stand.
